Welcomes you .....

We welcome you to another edition of #MovingOnUp, our newsletter bringing you the latest information surrounding Sutton Coldfield Training, as well as wider social events and causes that are informative and impact the community in a positive way.

New team members.

We have recently welcomed two new members of staff to our team, Ethar Elfadli and Lucie Bonehill. Ethar is one of our new apprentice administrators and has shown a keen interest in improving her skills and knowledge as well as displaying a tremendous work ethic and initiative. Lucie joins us bringing a high level of experience in the education sector and will be part of our quality and compliance team.

Welcome, Ethar Elfadli

Key Points To Remember!

#WorldCreativityAndInnovationDay - Celebrated April 21st 2024:

World Creativity & Innovation Week (WCIW) is a weeklong global celebration, uniting a diverse international community. This event is a motivation for fostering everyday creativity within businesses, households, educational institutions, and communities. The 2024 World Creativity & Innovation Week centres around the theme “INSPIRE,” carrying forward the momentum from 2023. Last year’s focus on inspiring people, fostering connections, and encouraging action continues in our commitment to drive inspiration and meaningful efforts in creativity and innovation. At Sutton Coldfield Training we champion and support the local community and encourage creativity when it comes to our students and how they progress in their qualifications and overall experience with ourselves. We also ensure that our staff undergo training that allows staff members to always reach their potential and to explore their creativity in and outside of the workplace.

Employee Spotlight

Ever since I was young, I've wanted to do a hundred different things, from doctor to police woman to being a TV presenter. Throughout this one consistent ambition has always been to go to university, as I love learning and value education deeply. However, there's no denying that there are many faults in the education system in the sense that students are not well equipped with the appropriate skillset for the future. I personally found myself in a position where I had no idea what I was good at or what I actually wanted to do at all. This led me to delay going to university and undertake an apprenticeship. This will allow me to explore the working world, develop my skills and discover my strengths and weaknesses. From here I can choose to commit to a path based on what I know I am good at and most importantly enjoy. I have many hopes for the next twelve months; I hope to make meaningful connections, learn from the pool of experience around me, build and strengthen my skill set and improve my weaknesses in order to have a solid foundation for any path I may choose to take.

Statement from Ethar Elfadli as she begins her employment journey at Sutton Coldfield Training.
